city would be effected today.

Reels Blast Their Way to Outskirts of Second Biggest Finnish City

By RALPH FORTE
British United Press. Exclusive Cable to The Edmonton Bulletin.
HELSINKI, March 1.—According to an official Finnish communiqué, Red army troops blasting their way to the outskirts of Viipuri today encountered stiff Finnish resistance. The Finns also inflicted heavy casualties.
The communiqué said, on Russians fighting on the eastern front. The fight for Viipuri on the Karelian Isthmus brought a critical turn to the Finnish-Russian war, but dispatches from the lines before Finland's second city were meagre.

Finns virtually admitted that their second largest city was untenable, that Russian occupation was only a question of time and that the Russians were now so close that they could see the fires their artillery laid out.

Strategically, Viipuri is of great importance to the invaders. It lies at the head of the Gulf of Bothnia, and once established there, they would be on the road to Helsinki, lying 200 miles southwest by a broad coastal highway.

Viipuri's fall would mark the end of one of the most important Finnish cities. The Russians, however, are not so sure of their success.
The city is a strategic point in the defense of the Mannerheim line to the western end of the Isthmus. The advance from Viipuri presumably would be west and south, toward the capital.

Finland asks
for full aid
from Canada

Note to Dominion Government Charges Reds With Illegal Warfare
By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
LONDON, March 1.—Finland has sent a note to the Canadian government drawing attention to the "repugnant methods" of warfare adopted by the Russian army in the Finnish-Russian war. The note continues to sympathize and all possible assistance to the Finnish government.

The note, made public by the British legation, was addressed to Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian high commissioner to the United Kingdom, for transmission to Ottawa. It was similar in its terms to notes addressed to the British government and all the Dominions.
The Russian army was accused
of all the recorded rules of warfare,
its obligations to the covenant of the League of Nations, and its non-aggression pact with Finland.

The note declared Russian soldiers in the first two months of the war, "battered 747 localities out of existence, destroyed 10,000 buildings, dropping 70,000 bombs and often using machine guns."
It accused Russia of bombing protected zones, hospitals, trains, ambulances, churches and schools and of using machine-gunning for artillery positions.

The Russian army was accused of using prisoners and civilians as shields for attack and of firing gas shells and gas-filled balloons.
The Finnish note gave a long list of examples of what it termed "illegal methods of warfare" indulged in by the Russians and insisted that the Finnish government had refrained from reprisals "for human reasons."

Italy to enter
war if Balkans
suffer invasion

By REYNOLDS PACKARD
British United Press Exclusive Cable
to The Edmonton Bulletin ROME, March 1.—Italy will enter the war if it is spread to the Balkans Virginio Gorge, editor and often a pugnacious spokesman for the Mussolini, said in an interview with the United Press.

The Italian river as well as the Mediterranean are the key to Italy's strategy. Italy is ready to aid in any peace, and the mission of Duke of the Abruzzi coast consists of Summer Wells is regarded as a happy development in that discussion. Gorge and war in the Balkans would make it impossible for Italy
to remain neutral.

"But I don't expect any immediate peace," he said. "The conflict between the Axis and the Allies is a great deal more than a simple matter of war and peace. I think the end of the war is far distant."

ADVANCE POLLS
FOR MILITARY
VOTE DEBATED

Officials Studying Regulations With View To Settlement

Consideration is being given to holding advance polls to record soldiers' votes in the provincial general election of March 21, officials said Friday.

R. A. Anderson, chief electoral officer, and other officials were studying regulations with a view to settling the matter, and it is expected that a special order-incumbent appointing a returning officer to take the soldier vote will be passed next week when the cabinet ministers meet here.

It has been pointed out that one difficulty is making available the soldier vote for inclusion in the first vote on election day. The number of first choices for any candidate will be known. This is essential before a quota for election can be struck.

Good News For Alberta

Edmonton people, and Albertans generally, will welcome the announcement that Prime Minister King plans to elevate Hon. James A. MacKinnon to the rank of active Ministers, placing him in charge of one of the important portfolios. This advancement was predictable when the member for West Edmonton was appointed a Minister without portfolio. It would not have come sooner had Alberta been strongly represented by Government supporters in the last House of Commons.

A long-time resident of Edmonton, Mr. MacKinnon is thoroughly familiar with the western problems and needs and with the development of the mining industry that has been going on actively in the north country for several recent years. A hard worker, with a keen mind and a likeable personality, he will be able to pull his full share of the load with his cabinet colleagues. The experience he has gained while filling in for other Ministers during their absence is also an asset that will stand him in good stead.

Mr. MacKinnon is a man of population, production and distinctive resources entitled to representation in the Dominion cabinet by a full-time Minister. It has been deprived of this by political circumstance. It stands to benefit through having such representation restored to it in the person of a man who knows its conditions, its handicaps and its opportunities for productive and commercial expansion.

Edmonton, the gateway to the north, where those opportunities are practically unlimited, will appreciate the distinction conferred upon it by the selection of Mr. MacKinnon as Alberta's representative in the Cabinet, and not less the advantages which must come to it through development policies administered by one having intimate knowledge of the great and varied resources of the northland.

Russia Versus the World

Volunteers from Britain, from France, from Italy, and from an indefinite number of other countries, are on the way to Finland, to join the Swedish, Norwegian, Danish and other volunteers already there. It is fortunate the Finns are an educated people. They will need to know a dozen languages if the orders of their commanders are to be passed along in terms comprehensible to the auxiliaries.

There could hardly be a more striking demonstration of the Finns' sympathy for the cause of Finland and condemnation of Soviet aggression than is supplied by the ranks of the international army now gathering to help stop the invaders. There are no foreign recruits in the Red forces.

It is unfortunate this outside help did volunteer long ago. While the Finns were holding their own there was only a trickle of volunteers into the ranks from abroad. Only when they started to give ground did the rush to their assistance get under way. The reinforcements may not be too late, but they now confront the task of helping to recapture strongly fortified positions which the Finns were holding a few weeks ago.

That Red troops will be sacrificed without regard to numbers to hold the ground they have gained is certain. Stalin doesn't need to worry about the casualties. He has plenty of "cannon fodder" in reserve; and may even welcome the chance to put disaffected units where the bullets fly thickest. If the war hadn't been started it would be about time for another "march" in Redland anyway.

The outlook is not brightening the Finnish front as bitter as any that has yet occurred there, with a strong possibility that before many weeks it may become an Allied front.

On the Agenda

Speaking at Waterloo, Hon. W. D. Miller said if the present Dominion Government is sustained at the polls an unemployment insurance scheme will be introduced in parliament. This is not a campaign-borne promise. That item is definitely placed on the agenda long before the present election was foreseen.

Months ago Ottawa resumed negotiations with the provincial governments to see whether these were willing to concede the Dominion the necessary powers to undertake and operate an unemployment insurance system, on its own responsibility and at its own cost. It was announced that if the provinces were agreeable to this, the necessary legislation would be brought down at the pending session of parliament. What the Minister of trade and commerce said at Waterloo is that this is still the intention.

It is a matter of history that six provinces agreed to the same proposal two or three years ago. The other three refused, apparently fearing that the amendment might go farther than the purpose in view and in some way permit Dominion meddling with other matters. Just what matters were never explained.

The result was a deadlock. The Dominion would not undertake to operate an insurance plan without definite assurance that none of the provinces would interfere, for political or other reasons. The dissenting provinces would not give the assurance asked. So—we have no unemployment insurance scheme.

On the major point there can hardly be an opinion. All opinion is based on the federal and provincial governments, Canada needs an unemployment insurance system. If any provincial government is still unconvinced of that, it is curiously out of line with public opinion.

But if that is agreed, there is ground to hope the resumed negotiations will be hard work, with even good will on both sides, it cannot be impossible to reach agreement which would give the Dominion the necessary control over an undertaking for which it would supply all the money and take all the "kicks," without opening the way for infringement of provincial jurisdiction in other directions.

Editorial Notes

With five hundred letters and parcels dumped on his cot at one mail delivery, Canada's "loneliest" soldier is probably wishing the folks back home hadn't heard about it.

The Netherlands Government floated a "mobilization loan" of $160,000,000. Holland is not required for war purposes. The money is to be used with its neighbors and wants to remain so. The financial difference between peace and war in Europe is only the difference between the cost of maintaining an army ready to fight and maintaining an army actually fighting.

Documents published at Washington show that General Pershing was opposed to making a truce with Germany in 1918, and urged that the Allies carry on to a "complete victory." It is no secret that most of the Allied commanders held the same view, and that among the rank and file there was a general desire to go "on to Berlin." The statesmen had their way. Some of them must be sorry now that they over-ruled the fighting men.

The Transiting Show

By J. S. COWPER

Who are the twenty leading citizens of Edmonton? I'll start the list with a few names—Hon. Wm. Abernethy as premier of the province, Mayor John W. Fry as chief magistrate and Mr. John Dower as president of the Board of Trade. These qualify by virtue of their position to be mentioned in the list. You can find the remainder to be named to yourself.

OUR TWENTY LEADING MEN I'm glad my name won't be among them who will for these will be the men who will be held at hostage against the Nazis when the war. They would be stood against a wall and shot without any citizen make a hostile move against the German soldiers.

We're so far away from events in Europe, we must translate happenings there into local events to grasp some of their reality. I'm only applying to Edmonton the procedure adopted by the Nazi invaders in Poland—helped by a neutral account of happenings in Lodz, Poland's second largest city. Lodz has been incorporated into the Third Reich, though it never belonged to Prussia, even in the old partition days.

The first act of the Germans upon entering the city, says a neutral eyewitness, was to proceed to the City Hall and demand the surrender of the twenty leading citizens of the city, hostages against attack. Lodz holds an important position in the cotton industry of Europe, so declaration was required of all stocks of goods in the city.

WHEN NAZIS ENTERED Jews were threatened with death if they dared come to trade in textiles or other goods. They were wearing yellow marks on their backs. Trusts were appointed for all Jewish-owned businesses. All cash over and above a certain nominal value of 20 cents had to be paid into the banks. A curfew for Jews was fixed from 9 p.m. till 5 a.m. The streets were patrolled by German soldiers. Under the pretext of searching for arms and radio sets, private homes were raided and looted. The Germans and their soldiers entered into seeming collusion with the Altmark to violate Norwegian neutrality. And that was not Norway's first fault. She has allowed Germany to use her territory to wage war in a manner at variance with international law, and she is incapable of defending her neutrality. Great Britain and France should have justification in providing such "backbone" as will safeguard Norwegian territorial waters from German submarines.

On Nov. 8, the day Lodz was formally taken over into the Reich, official announcement was that "Poles will be laborers and will serve the Germans." All Jews were ordered to wear a "Volksdeutsch" who thus became a privileged class. Polish members of boards of directors and large companies were dismissed. A concentration camp was established in the Lodz brick factory, and two Poles left hanging by their necks for two days in a central square as a warning to the populace.

A list of 600 notable citizens was compiled for deportation. In a typical case quoted by the neutral observer, Jews were not let go. They were taken to a camp, where they were kept for two weeks. They were given food and shelter, but they were not allowed to leave. They were given a small amount of money (about 200 zlotys) were taken from him. He was given half an hour to pack a small suitcase and clothes and to take his family. With a bishop, a rabbi, bank managers, labor leaders, lawyers, doctors, mothers with infants in their arms and one 66-year-old mother of a bank director, the "notables" were moved in cattle trucks to Cracow.

Translated that the "notables" happened if you want a picture of tyranny.

Says the victim in a letter to my informant "The doors of the cattle wagons were locked and we were not allowed to leave. It was terribly cold. Wrapped in our rugs, our feet enveloped in old newspapers, munching our sandwiches and waiting for the next train. A bishop, a rabbi, bank managers, labor leaders, lawyers, doctors, mothers with infants in their arms and one 66-year-old mother of a bank director, the "notables" were moved in cattle trucks to Cracow.

where we were being taken. The train passed several stations without stopping, but stopped for hours in the open air. We were kept in reaching Cracow instead of the normal six hours."

Deportations did not stop till over 8,000 persons were thus railroaded out of the city away from their homes and businesses. Some of the notable citizens were among the first to be deported. They were taken to a camp, where they were kept for two weeks. They were given food and shelter, but they were not allowed to leave. #### Case for Milk

According to recent reports coming from Finland, alcohol of any kind is banned among the troops. Instead, each fighter is furnished with huge quantities of fresh milk daily.

If a couple of glasses of milk each day can turn a peaceful little animal into a roaring bulldog that bites bears, maybe Chamberlain would better begin raising a herd of Guernseys along the Magist Line—Tallahassee, Florida, Democrat.

Britain's Plain Talk to Norway

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's statement in the British Parliament on the dramatic episode of the Altmark was so convincing in upholding the justice of the course that the British Admiralty ordered in order to liberate the British seamen the German auxiliary naval vessel and its prisoners and wholly justified. It will be realized what all other neutral nations recognized in the first instance. It is that grave responsibility and not a little blame attach to her for permitting the German prison ship to commit the initial violation of neutrality law by seeking refuge for herself and her prisoners in Norwegian waters.

Norwegian waters, followed Mr. Chamberlain's declaration that Great Britain had no allegiance to take to Norway or anyone else for the "admirable" and "valuable" operation of the British destroyer Concock, the Prime Minister stern warning to the effect that if Norway failed to grant freedom of passage to the British ships, the British would assume the task of protecting the inviolability of her coastal waters, the British would assume the task of protecting the inviolability of her coastal waters.

It is patent to everybody that Norway allowed her of Germany to blind her to all juridical considerations in this case. The British Prime Minister outspokenly and honestly should have shaken her out of the state of terrorism into which she has been driven under Nazi pressure and the German blockade. She would not have entered into seeming collusion with the Altmark to violate Norwegian neutrality. And that was not Norway's first fault. She has allowed Germany to use her territory to wage war in a manner at variance with international law, and she is incapable of defending her neutrality. Great Britain and France should have justification in providing such "backbone" as will safeguard Norwegian territorial waters from German submarines.

Fifty years ago today (March 1, 1900), the legislature of British Columbia had a dramatic incident. It passed a resolution of non-confidence in the lieutenant-governor, who was then Sir James Dunsmuir. The resolution was passed by a vote of 18 to 12. The lieutenant-governor had asked him to create a cabinet.

It was a sequel to a series of political stunts which had taken place in the province. The result of an election in 1898 there was a deadlock, the ministry of J. H. Turner: electing 18 and the opposition 12, but were not let go. They were taken to a camp, where they were kept for two weeks. They were given food and shelter, but they were not allowed to leave. They were given a small amount of money (about 200 zlotys) were taken from him. He was given half an hour to pack a small suitcase and clothes and to take his family. ### Good Idea

Editor Bulletin: Every intelligent person who has ever seen any of the things that come out of the draft in Canada, both political parties and their voters, have come to the conclusion that there is a certain element among the so-called socialists who are creating a great deal of mischief, if nothing more, in the present war. They are the street they approach you and with an air of great severity, they tell you "Sab!" They are the ones who are the most dangerous to the war effort.

Fiscal Reform

Editor Bulletin: One of the most pressing problems of the present time is the monetary reform, not only in a national sense, but in the international sphere, so that trade may be unhampered from country to country. If there is to be any peace, the channels of trade must be opened wide, as the greatest contributory cause of war is the prevention of the disposal of surplus money.

ONE WELSHMAN WON'T ATTEND CITY BANQUET

But Wm. Morris Will Be Remembered By St.
David's Group

There'll be one Edmonton Welshman who won't attend the banquet being held in the coronation hall Friday evening by the St. David's Welsh Society in celebration of St. David's day. He is William Morris of suite 4, 1002 92 street, who with Jonathan Brown, now of North Wales, started the Edmonton branch of the St. David's Welsh Society in July, 1939.

The reason he won't be there is that 20 years ago he was stricken with a mysterious malady which left him crippled and for the past two and a half years he has been unable to leave his home.

Mr. Morris was born in Monmouthshire in Wales in 1879 and lived for many years at the works department until his illness made it impossible for him to carry on.

During the past 20 years he has traveled all over North America, visiting leading doctors and sanatoriums in an effort to have his affliction cured, but without success. Today he lives on a St. David's pension.

But he will be remembered by the older Welshmen attending the banquet Friday night by the fact that at the banquet includes address by Mayor John W. Fry and N. B. James. Toasts by Dr. C. E. Jones and H. E. Jenkins, and entertainment by Mrs. G. M. Blacklock, Frank Williams, D. C. Jones, Jack Jones and the St. David's male voice choir conducted by Jack Williams. Miss Patricia Brown and Mrs. E. E. Meaden.

Incidentally, he has been a Bulletin subscriber since July 1926.

Vision

By Jackson Bros., Optometrists.

There are a great many people who take the modern Optometrist hanging around today in a daze, groping here and there, trying hard to distinguish one object from another, simply because of faulty vision. Some people are so near sighted that they are unable to distinguish even the stars. They do not realize what they are missing and the terrible toll they are paying.

Do you know that a person with near-sightedness can see the entire scene put out by the human body? The extra energy consumed on up of this by a person with faulty vision is terrific. No wonder people are going around complaining of aches and pains. Eyestrain also attacks the nervous system, and also causes indigestion, headache, and many other complaints.

It is hard to realize why people will keep on straining their eyes, when they can get their vision corrected.

Founder WOMEN MUST USE BALLOT LEAGUE TOLD

Is Weapon Of Defense,
Speaker Says—Citizens'
Slate Heard

Declaring that the ballot is a "weapon of defense," Mrs. J. B. Stewart, president of the Alberta Women's League, told a League meeting at the Masonic Temple Thursday afternoon that now women have the vote they must make full use of it.

She made this statement when introducing Citizens' slate candidates to the Edmonton provincial constituency. Speakers were E. C. Fisher, Hugh J. McDonald, K.C., Gerald O'Connor, K.C., L. V. Cairns, K.C., D. M. Duggan, K.C., and C. Parson, K.C., and Percy Page.

WEAPON OF DEFENSE
"The ballot is a weapon of defense," Mrs. Stewart said. "Women's votes are the only ones for many years, and now that we have the vote, we must make full use of it."

"Loss of indifference to the vote is a loss not only to ourselves and the next generation, but to posterity," she said.

She advocated the formation of study groups among women that they might become fully aware of the needs of the people.

L. V. Cairns, K.C., advised registered voters to vote in the province in order that the Dominion government could be held responsible for the results of the election.

He suggested a form of vocational education in place of "hands off" vocational education, and that employers be trained to handle women.

SOCIAL CREDIT BOARD ISSUES NEW BOOKLET

Is Record Of Government
From 1935 To 1939

Revised to March 1, 1940 the booklet "The Record Tells the Story" based on addresses given last summer by Premier William Abernethy in a speaking tour of the province, was issued Friday by the Social Credit Board.

The original book was issued with revisions while the revised version is in white.

The revised booklet states that in all instances where the data is now available, the facts and figures have been revised in December, 1939.

"It must be pointed out that the figures are not intended to give a true picture of the government's record, but to show the government's record as it is.

The booklet is available for sale at 10¢ per copy, and may be obtained from the Social Credit Board, 1000 10th Avenue, Edmonton.
